

Thornhill Moulding Collection

Larson-Juhl and renowned designer, Jonathan Adler, have teamed up to create Thornhill, a luxurious new moulding collection featuring classic linen texture with a high-glam lacquer finish. These lacquer finishes and contemporary profiles exude the happy, handcrafted, luxe design aesthetic that is making Jonathan Adler a respected designer and a household name. Steve McKenzie, President and CEO of Larson-Juhl states, "Since 1998, when I started collecting Jonathan Adler pottery, I have admired his style and sensibility. I respect his design aesthetics and ability to have fun, while creating interiors that have a distinct voice."

Thornhill combines the timeless texture of linen with chic colors and modern lacquer for a fun, hip new product that will energize frame designs. Consumers have long embraced Jonathan Adler's style with his pottery, pillows, furniture and accessories and now they can have a piece of this affordable luxe look, on their walls.

Thornhill's four high gloss lacquer finishes are glamorous and modern. The collection includes: Bone, a warm ivory with a neutral taupe glaze; Espresso, a dark roasted black-brown; Chambray, a light denim with a hint of teal; and Oxblood, a rich burgundy with black undertones. Adler states, "I wanted the palette to be broad enough for the collection to look right in many settings – Oxblood and Chambray are perfect for a mahogany filled den or library, Bone and Espresso are totally chic in a modern loft."

Thornhill features two contemporary profiles and a fillet to round out the collection. The smaller profile, 446, is 1" wide with an angled back edge that makes the frame pop against the wall. The sides of the profile are finished in a smooth, high gloss that contrasts the linen texture on top. Profile 541 is a larger version at 2" wide – the perfect flat profile for a modern interior. A nail head fillet, 159, is available in Polished Nickel and Brass to add a polished, glamorous look to the rich Thornhill finishes. Two industrial corner ornaments in Polished Nickel and Brass offer a unique, decorative touch to complete Thornhill frame designs.

